Undo the 10mm nuts from current carb and swap the carbs over as refitting is the reversal of removal (famous Haynes manual words). Wollah new carb is on. Now you can stick on your 42mm air filter of choice and colour. One thing Paul did was disassemble the old air box and put the rear half back on to reduce splash and water to the new air filter.

The Keihin generator carb was a big improvement over the clone generator carb. And this slide PZ30 carb is a nice improvement over the Keihin. Idle and mid-range throttle response is better than with the Keihin. No surprise there since the generator carbs weren't designed to operate over a wide range of throttle openings.
