Parliament changed their immigration laws and arranged for a train called the Kindertransport, to take Jewish children out of Germany without their parents to safety in England. The Children's Train follows Peter, 11 and his sister Becca who is 6 and his friends who got a seat on the train. It also follows Eva who he has a crush on but thinks she could never see him as a boyfriend, and his other friends, including a friend with Downs Syndrome who did not take the Kindertransport.

The Orphan Train Movement was a supervised welfare program that transported orphaned and homeless children from crowded Eastern cities of the United States to foster homes located largely in rural areas of the Midwest. The orphan trains operated between 1854 and 1929, relocating about 200,000 orphaned, abandoned, abused, or homeless children. Three charitable institutions, Children's Village, the Children's Aid Society and later, the New York Foundling Hospital, endeavored to help these children
