The Duchess is unquestionably the heroine of The Duchess of Malfi, so many critics have questioned Webster's choice to have her tragic, heroic death scene in the fourth act rather than the fifth. This placement leaves room for the play's themes to be tied up, and for the tragic destruction of the Duchess and her family to be avenged through Bosola, who in this act finally gets to fight on the side of the good that he claimed to have had inside him all along.

In The Duchess of Malfi the tragic action once again appears to conclude with the death of the eponymous protagonist. Repeated prolepses have prepared us for just such a catastrophe, starting with the very first scene, where her brothers' lecture upon the iniquity of remarriage viciously inverts the familiar conceit of eroticised death-as-wedding to make the widow's marriage a kind of death.
